SEWER TREATMENT PLANT UPDATE

Planning and design are underway for improvements to the city's 45 year old sewer plant. Given the average useful life of a wastewater treatment plant is 20-25 years, it is of no surprise most of the processes at the facility are reaching the end of their useful life and require replacement or repair.

These improvements are proactive upgrades to help accommodate future growth as well as provide a more efficient system. More details can be found on the city website.
